

The Platform That Creates a Culture Everyone Loves

motivationWorks drives deeper employee engagement, fulfillment, and performance in a way no other software solution can.

Built for motivation

motivationWorks was built from the ground up by the same motivational scientists behind many of the best-selling management books that are probably on your bookshelf.

Integrating years of research motivationWorks integrates decades of behavioral research, empowering you to measure what matters and take the right actions to bring about real change.

Bringing together organizations motivationWorks involves your whole company in the process: Every manager and employee gets a customized report with the precise insights they need to thrive.

motivationWorks was created by the founders of Self-Determination Theory — the leading behavioral model in the world for understanding motivation, engagement, and well-being. Now the power, insight, and support of this model are available to everyone through our solution.

Let's talk about how we put this proven science to work in your organization to build the culture that you and your employees deserve.

Expert measurement of the employee experiences that drive engagement

Measuring things is easy; measuring the right things is hard. We precisely measure the key experiences that drive higher engagement and enable employees to thrive.

Dashboards and analysis tools that empower, not overwhelm

We give you a clear picture of the employee experience across your organization and quickly identify the main cultural drivers of the business outcomes you care about.

Insights and action plans for every manager

We provide each and every manager with a report tailored to their needs, along with practical recommendations proven to make them and their teams more successful.

Meaningful support for every employee

We give each employee a confidential report based on their personal experiences and provide support where they need it most. Each person receives insight into how they can personally thrive and help build an amazing culture.

Training and consultative support from the world's leading experts on motivation and engagement

As a motivationWorks customer, you'll have access to this expertise through a full suite of on-site and remote training programs, as well as direct support from the experts who have trained and consulted for leading companies around the world.

motivationWorks: a scalable suite of software tools, training, and support that empowers everyone in your organization to thrive.